Two Major Trials For Special Court

Two murder trials head the criminal docket of a special term of Perry Circuit Court that will convene next Monday.

Truman Delaney, 32, of Tribbey, will go on trial Monday for the murder of David Riddle last Christmas Eve and Dora Smith of Awawam will be tried Wednesday for allegedly killing her husband, Rufus Smith Jr. last February 7.

Delaney has been held without bond in the Pike County Jail since he was arrested as a suspect in the Riddle killing.

He waived his preliminary hearing and was later indicted by the February grand jury after pleading not guilty.

Mrs. Smith was also indicted by the February grand jury before which she pleaded not guilty.

She was first denied bond but after her indictment was released on $7,500 bond set by Circuit Judge Don A. Ward.

Salyers Trial Set

Mrs. Smith's father, L. C. Salyers will also be tried next Wednesday on an accessory before the fact of murder charge.

Salyers allegedly furnished the pistol with which Mrs. Smith is accused of shooting her husband to death in her home at Awawam.

He pleaded not guilty and has been free on $2,500 bond since his indictment in February.

Docket Announced

Other cases on next week's docket are:

March 23: Joe Adams and Rufus Joseph, Grand Larceny; Truman Delaney, armed robbery and two previous convictions;

March 24: Herschel Riley, carrying concealed deadly weapon;

March 25: Mrs. Smith and Salyers;

March 26: Jonah Godesky, shooting at and wounding with intent to kill;

March 27: Ronnie Watts, deserting pregnant wife.

In some of its final action before rendering its report and retiring, the Grand Jury last week handed down twenty six new indictments.

Seven of these new indictments had to do with parents who allegedly neglected their children in some way.

Floyd Barker, Elmer Jones, John D. Couch and Edward Holland all were indicted for allegedly failing to send their children to school.

Child Abandonment

And George and Erle Owens of Busy were both indicted for alleged abandonment of children under sixteen.

This indictment grew out of complaints lodged with County Attorney Calvin Manis by neighbors who said the Owens children had been virtually abandoned.

Accompanied on two trips to Busy by a local child welfare representative, two local ministers and a newspaper photographer-reporter, Manis visited the Owens home to investigate the neighbor's complaint. "It was the worst I've seen," Manis said.

Manis found alone in a virtually unfurnished and poorly heated house several of the younger Owens children barefooted and barely clothed who said their diet consisted mostly of "potatoes and bread."

Eight In Family

Eight children are in the family, ranging in age from three to sixteen. Only three of them go to school.

Welfare workers have been making frequent visits to the Owens home since Manis' investigation and report that since the indictment of the parents, considerable improvement in the family living conditions have been brought about.

Owens is steadily employed. Other indictments springing from alleged child neglect are James Frank Gibson, and Ellis Fugate, child desertion.

Davis Gets a Lift

Joe Davis gets a hero's ride on the shoulders of a jubilant crowd after his field goal with eight seconds left in the game brought Hazard from behind to a one point victory over the Carr Creek Indians in the 14th Region finals in Memorial Gymnasium last Saturday. It was Davis' clutch free throw shooting in the final minutes of the game—he hit four for four in two trips to the line—that kept the Bulldogs in the game to set the stage for his dramatic jump shot that won the Regional championship and a trip to the state playoffs in Lexington.

Knifing Suspect Is Reported In Ohio

City Police have received word that Kenneth Combs, wanted for allegedly cutting Hazard basketball star Freddy Hogg with a knife last Saturday is now in Ohio.

However, no address is known at this time so local Police have not yet asked Ohio authorities to apprehend him.

Combs was last seen here on Liberty Street near where the knifing took place, shortly after it happened after the Hazard-Carr Creek game Saturday night.

Witnesses told city police that after Hogg was cut on the hand Combs went around the area on Liberty Street trying to find Hogg again.

They said he jerked open the door of a private home there and called into to it, asking for Hogg. When he did not find him, witnesses said Combs disappeared up the street in the dark.

Hogg was taken to Good Samaritan Hospital in Lexington after emergency treatment here. He did not dress for last night's state tournament game with Oldham County, but sat on the bench with his teammates, his injured left hand swathed in bandages.

Two Cars Looted Near Gymnasium During Tourney

Owners of two automobiles parked near Memorial Gymnasium were victims of thefts during night games of the 14th Regional basketball tournament held here last week.

A battery was stolen from a car belonging to James Hurt of Bulant that was parked on Davis Street last Thursday night while Carr Creek and Wolfe County were playing.

And two hubcaps were taken from a car belonging to Frank Cornette of Walnut Street the next night about ten p.m.

Police say neither of the missing items have been recovered.

Program Set On Beautification Of Mountains

The old bugaboo of beautification in the mountains will be tackled again by the Upper Kentucky River Area Development Council at its next meeting.

The next meeting will be April 21, starting at 10 a. m., at the Whitesburg Presbyterian Church.

The program will feature a task force organized by William R. Miller, specialist in community services for the Eastern Kentucky Resources Development project at Quicksand.

Experts on community clean-up will be provided by the Kentucky Department of Conservation.

Cleaning up of trash dumps along the highways will be stressed with provision for garbage dumps.

"I believe that if designated garbage dumps were provided most people would use them instead of hauling their trash away and dumping it on someone else or along the highway or riverbank," said a health department sanitarian.

"The big problem is garbage dumps. They are hard to arrange. We know of eight good sites in Perry County for land-fill type dumps but nearly all of them belong to coal companies and they simply won't sell the land to us."

Health departments have legal authority to penalize trash dumps "but enforcement is extremely difficult when we can offer them no alternative."

Charles E. Allen In Music Recital

Charles Everett Allen, Hazard High graduate and freshman at Berea College participated in a three-member harpsichord-recorder recital given at Berea College on March 7 in honor of the Danforth Fellows.

Charles played the alto recorder with Mrs. Judy Drake of Berea. They were accompanied by Mr. Paul Davis of the Berea College Music Staff. The selections featuring the two alto recorders were Purcell's "Chaconne for Two Recorders" and two sections of Handel's "Alto Recorder Duet."

Trained in the clarinet by Harlan Stone, Hazard High School Band Director, Charles studied the recorder at Homeplace under Miss Marie Marvel, Recreation Director, and at John C. Campbell Folk School under Eric Lieber, New York concert recorder player. He hopes to travel to Kithaven, Vermont, during the summer to continue his training in this Elizabethan instrument which is the forerunner of the modern flute.

Bulldogs Advance In State Tournament With 72-60 Victory

The Sweet Sixteen will be narrowed down to the Eager Eight tonight, and Hazard's scrappy young Bulldogs will be among them as the 1964 high school basketball wars continue in Lexington.

Hazard advanced to Friday's quarter finals by virtue of their 72-60 win last night over Oldham County.

Jim Rose led the Bulldog attack with 33 points, a performance that must have had the college scouts drooling at UK's Memorial Coliseum but also frustrated since Rose is only a freshman, three years away from college play.

Performance Below Par

Hazard's winning performance was actually a below-par effort in the minds of many local fans who had seen them earlier whip such teams as Ashland, 71-47 and Breathitt County, 73-33 during the season.

Due to a cold night at the free throw line and several floor mistakes in the first three quarters, Oldham County led at each rest stop, and once during the second period held a seven-point lead.

But the Bulldogs hung on, searching for a spark. They found it in the last four minutes of the game when their play was ignited into a roaring inferno of 11 straight points, ten of them by Jim Rose, which scorched Oldham right out of the state tournament and kept Hazard's state championship hopes alive.

Fred Hogg Out

Those hopes suffered a severe blow last Saturday night when center Freddy Hogg, who had been scoring an average of 17 points a game and was getting better all the time, was lost to the team when his left hand was severely cut in a fracas after he had helped the Bulldogs win the 14th Region championship in a close game with Carr Creek.

Hazard will meet Bourbon County, the Tenth Region champions who eliminated favored East Hardin last night 73-69, in a quarterfinal game Friday afternoon at two p. m.

If they win out over Bourbon County Friday, they will advance to the semi-finals as one of four surviving teams in the state playoffs, to meet the winner of the Covington Grant, Seneca game.

Covington Grant beat Clark County 73 to 57 and Seneca downed Harlan 63-36 in the

Rose Rises To Score

Hazard forward Jim Rose goes high for his twenty points against Breathitt County in the first game of the regional tourney here. The Bulldog victory trail has Hazard County, 83-65, Carr Creek 56-55, and in the state tournament opener in Lexington, 72-60 over Oldham County. In that game Rose gave what may have been the best state tournament performance ever by a high school player as he scored 33 points to lead the Bulldogs in the quarter finals as they seek to add the state crown to their already crowded 1963-64 trophy case.

Contributions of Home Economics

By Ruth Ellen Rogers, Sandra Pigman, State Degree Cand.

The Vocational Home Economics Program provided at Hazard High School improves personal, home and family living through instructions for day classes, home visits, home experiences, Future Homemakers of America, and school and community activities.

While studying the seven areas of homemaking: child care, clothing, foods, health, housing, management, and personal and family relations, a student learns valuable information. The future homemaker begins to appreciate the importance of good home and family life and understands the factors involved. Thus, she will grasp the influence of a good home and the elements that make it.

Home Economics helps the student to develop the homemaking abilities needed in today's home, such as: family relations, management of resources, and technical skills. By learning to work democratically with others for the improvement of her home, school, and community, she becomes more concerned about other individuals and works cooperatively with them. While participating in homemaking activities, she begins to analyze her own difficulties, think through the factors involved, seek information and make decisions in light of what is important to her. Establishing goals, making a plan for reaching these goals, and evaluating the progress after completion, helps the student to grow according to her own needs. The study of clothing teaches her how to be a more attractive person.

Wanting to learn, to understand and appreciate people of different cultures, the pupil makes a greater effort to become acquainted with and learn about children, older people and persons from other races. The study of Home Economics at Hazard High most of all helps the student become a better home, school and community leader.

Each semester the homemaker student is required to carry out at least one home project. The projects are related to class learnings. The teacher makes home visits for the purpose of becoming better acquainted with home situations and the needs of the pupil and helping her to make use of class instruction in the home. Through these supervised home experiences, pupils can see the relationship of class instruction to real homemaking activities and develop greater skill in carrying them out. Home experiences supplement class instruction and provide another means of reaching the goals of the homemaking education program.

An enrichment of the home economics program at Hazard High is the FHA organization for boys and girls enrolled in Home Economics classes. Our chapter is a member of the Pine Mountain District, State and National Organization.

The FHA organization is known by its flower, colors, emblem, motto, and creed. The flower, the red rose, represents the search of FHA for beauty in everyday living. The colors are red and white. Red, an intense color, suggests strength. White is recognized as a symbol of sincerity. The colors inspire FHA members with the courage and determination to succeed.

The right-sided emblem symbolizes the eight purposes of our organization. The motto, "Toward New Horizons" reminds members that their contributions to home life today will influence the kind of home and community life they have tomorrow.

To help a member grow FHA has three degrees of achievement. The junior degree is represented by the key, the chapter by the scroll and the state by the torch.

This year the Hazard Chapter has been working on two of our five National projects: "Marriage Calls for Preparation" and "Action for Citizenship."

Due to the many problems of present day homemakers, Adult education has been taught at Hazard High School to provide up-to-date information in the areas of home and family living. Earlier this year a class was taught for the experienced seamstress on Making a Tailored Dress. Since there is a need for beginning seamstress another unit in clothing, Making a Simple Dress, will begin March 30—free to all homemakers who want to learn to sew or improve basic sewing skills.

Hazard Urban Homemakers Study Programming at Meeting Thursday

The Hazard Urban Homemakers met Thursday, March 12th, at the Kentucky Power Company Auditorium. Mrs. Joseph Castagnaro, President, was in charge of the business meeting. Mrs. John A. Naegele gave the devotional. Her suggestion was that we as parents try to be good parents, giving to our children the good things of life, and withholding those that can be harmful.

A discussion was held on current programming. Since the National trend seems to be toward a lowering of moral standards, it was felt that something should be done to uplift this standard. Since so many children now have portable radios and are a captive audience to these programs, the Hazard Urban Homemakers voted to suggest to W. K. I. C., that they could do the community a service by helping to keep our moral standards high in this area. The group felt a better selection of programs and records could be made.

Mrs. Gene Combs gave a Landscaping Report prepared by the University of Kentucky Extension Service. Mrs. Combs then answered questions on pruning and planting that should be done during March.

Mrs. Castagnaro gave a resume' on events to be held at the State Homemakers meeting in Lexington, beginning March 31st.

Mrs. Paul Townes talked to the Homemakers on the Clean-up Program to be launched March 24th. Detailed plans will be made public before the kickoff date.

Mrs. Alva Hollon and Mrs. Bob Webb gave a program on "Making Kitchen Storage Devices." They displayed China and Spice Step Shelves and gave instructions on making various other storage racks.

Kentucky Redoubles Efforts At Tourist Attractions; Travel Is Big Business For State, Says Specialist

QUICKSAND, KY. — During the past few years Kentucky has doubled and redoubled its efforts at tourist attraction, and not without the best of reasons. For, according to Eastern Kentucky Resource Development Project, tourism specialist Jack Baxter, travel for recreation has become big business and Kentucky is only attempting to secure its fair share. Mr. Baxter who is with the University Extension Department at Quicksand, Kentucky is available to work with groups and individuals on their tourist facilities (Motels, Restaurants, Community Parks etc.)

Americans, says Baxter, roam far, fast, and in vast numbers spending billions annually seeking fun and diversion away from home. Jet planes have put distant lands just a short nap away and the ubiquitous automobile and super-highway has made any spot available.

It was only a few years ago that the wealthy indulged in vacation travel. Now, with paid vacations and nearly everybody owning an automobile, the whole nation is on the move and wherever the attraction and the accommodation remains, there the tourists gather.

Mr. and Mrs. Brent F. Logan had as their guests Evangelists John Hess, Bruce Mullins, and C. D. Lane all of West Virginia. There was a special called meeting at the Little Zion Church at Jeff (Old Regular Baptist). Other preachers present were Charles Cornett, Jim Pratt, Ruben Riddle, and Charlie Gibson. A large crowd was present.

A Mrs. Walters, from Ind. was baptized. The day was cold and there was snow on the ground but the preacher went down into the river here at the Jeff bridge, and the convert came up out of the water rejoicing.

Mr. Grover Campbell sustained burns in his bath tub Sunday. He is in the Appalachian Hospital.

Mr. Hadward Napier, of Jeff, has purchased a nice plot of land at the top of Cornett Hill (Christopher) and is in the process of building a new home. "Had" as we call him is an up and coming contractor.

Pratt - Reedy Marriage Solemnized; Hadward Napiers Build New Home

By Farmer and Eleanor Asher

Miss Jeanette Pratt became Mrs. H. B. Reedy, Jr., Saturday. The ceremony was performed by H. B. Sr., the father of the groom, at the bride's home at Acup. Jeanette is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pratt. H. B. and Jeanette attended college at Cumberland College.

Mrs. Delores Combs is a new employee at the Jo Ray Flower Shop at Jackson.

Oscar, Harold, and Ira Combs have made plans to attend the Basketball Tournament in Lexington. Other members of the Norman Combs family who will attend the tournament are: Lt. and Mrs. Delbert Combs and Mr. and Mrs. Delane Combs. We have been told that the Lt. has been making some high scores himself. Delbert is on the Air Force team and we hear they won all their games except the tournament.

If your thinking is right on the inside it helps tremendously. Try to make things go right on the outside. Look for the best.

G & S Company Appointed Falstaff Wholesaler Here

G & S Distributing Company, 1806 East Main Street, has been appointed wholesaler in this area for Falstaff Brewing Corporation, according to Eugene Mastin, owner of the local firm.

Mastin, a member of the Kentucky Beer Wholesalers Association, is active in civic affairs. He is vice-president of the Cumberland Rotary Club, past commander of VFW Post 5171 and is a member of Selective Service Board No. 180. Active in Freemasonry, he is a member of Masonic Lodge No. 832 and Shrine Oleika Temple.

He noted that Falstaff is one of the three largest selling brands of beer in the United States.

In three generations since its founding the company has grown from a single 300-barrel a day brewery to one of the leading brewing firms in the nation. Record breaking sales last year totaled 5,548,176 barrels (there are 31 gallons in the industry's standard barrel).

By carefully controlling each step of the brewing process and using a thoroughbred yeast culture, Falstaff was the first brewery in the country to successfully produce identical beer in separate locations. Executive offices and two of the company's eight brewing plants are located in St. Louis. The firm has other breweries in Omaha, New Orleans, San Jose, Fort Wayne, Galveston and El Paso. The firm's malting facilities are in Chicago.

GUARANTEED eat IN THE meat MAKES THIS A GREAT STEAK SALE!

We say "guaranteed EAT in the MEAT" for several reasons. The first deals with quality. Every "Super-Right" steak is cut from selected, combed, fully matured beef—it provides the best eating. Next, the care of the beef. Through every step until the minute you buy—strict quality control protects the eating goodness. Then there are A&P's cutting methods which insure full value. Let's take Round Steak for example. . . since this is something you can check for yourself. Experts agree, the best is a full cut center Round Steak—the only kind sold as "Super-Right". And you can easily tell one—look for these points (as shown in the two photos!)

1. Bone Must Be Round—Not Misshapen
2. The Meat, Red and Marbled
3. A Full Top Round Steak
4. A Generous Eye Round Section
5. A Full Bottom Round

You'll never find excess interior fat, gristle or heel meat—these mark a steak that is not full center cut. Buy any "Super-Right" steak—we guarantee the EAT in the MEAT... or your money back.

Ky. National Guard Members Discuss Armory At Lexington

Increased strength of the Army National Guard and the possibility that Lexington will be chosen as site of an additional Air Guard facility were among topics discussed at the Kentucky National Guard Association meeting in Lexington.

Major General Arthur Y. Lloyd, state adjutant general, also told the group that construction of new armories will be much more difficult in the future because of the lack of state funds.

Planned facilities now will hinge on funds available through the sale of old vacated armory property or through allocation of funds from a capitol construction bond issue which is pending in the Kentucky General Assembly.

General Lloyd said that he hoped that monies for National Guard armories might be included in the bond issue so that we might obtain 25 per cent of construction cost of new armories. "This is a real bargain and is very beneficial to Kentuckians," he said. The federal government furnishes 75 per cent of construction cost on armories.

"Unless funds for Armory construction are obtained from some source," General Lloyd said, "the construction of armories will be delayed perhaps as much as four years or more." Cities in line for new Guard training facilities include Lexington, St. Matthews, Richmond, Ravenna, Russellville and Carlisle.

General Lloyd also told the group that Army Guard units in the state would be strengthened as much as 250 men, perhaps by the end of March.

This is the reverse of a previous plan to reduce Guard strength by 160 men and the elimination of one unit.

He said the increase would be attributed to the changing of an Armor Battalion to an Infantry Battalion and the authorization to increase one battalion to 80 percent authorized strength from its present 55 percent strength.

Regarding Lexington as a site for an additional Air National Guard facility, General Lloyd said that the subject had been the topic of discussion in Washington by he and Brigadier General William R. Buster, and that they were hopeful that plans could be worked out. Presently all Air Guard units are based at the Shewmaker Air National Guard Base in Louisville.

During business sessions at the Phoenix Hotel, the association named the following officers for the coming year:

Lt. Col. William E. Hall, Louisville was named president; Major Joe L. Travis, Glasgow, vice president for Army; Lt. Col. William H. Beck, Louisville, vice president for Air, and Capt. Raymond E. Wallace, Louisville, secretary-treasurer.

As part of the association's contribution to the advancement of the education of military science students in the state, two Kentucky Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) students were awarded $250 scholarships.

Recipients of the award were Thomas J. Lewman, Jr., Bowling Green, a student at Western Kentucky State College, and Jack Hibbard, Pineville, a student at Eastern State College.

The annual session closed with a banquet and military ball. At the banquet, Lexington businessman and civic leader Penrose Ecton told the group of his recent tours in South America.

Inspections And Seat Belts Would Improve Safety

Periodic motor vehicle inspections and the use of seat belts would improve Kentucky's highway safety record and save lives, Governor Edward T. Breathitt declared in urging the General Assembly to enact such legislation.

Three bills pending in the General Assembly were designated by Breathitt as the "most important Kentucky highway safety legislation since the organization of the Kentucky State Police in 1948."

He asked that Senate Bill 190 providing for the annual inspection of all motor vehicles be passed, along with Senate Bill 1 providing for the installation of two front seat belts in all new cars sold in Kentucky. Another bill deemed necessary was House Bill 455 to help establish uniform vehicle safety standards throughout the nation.

Breathitt said at the Kentucky Highway Conference meeting in Lexington that states with good auto safety inspection programs have about a 15 per cent better safety record than states without auto safety inspections.

If all occupants of vehicles involved in traffic accidents in Kentucky last year had worn seat belts 80 persons of the 841 killed would have been saved, he said.

Periodic inspection of motor vehicles to see that brakes, lights, tires, and other safety equipment are in working order can save lives and reduce the number of accidents, the Governor said.

Perry County Health Department Hazard, Ky. Annual Report 1963

TO THE PEOPLE OF PERRY COUNTY:

In its effort to prevent disease and promote good health, the Perry County Health Department has carried on several major programs during the past year designed to meet your health needs.

The following report of our 1963 activities calls your attention to outstanding public health problems of Perry County and what the health department has done to solve them. You will note that special attention has been given to controlling tuberculosis, immunizing against disease, keeping mothers and children well, and toward promotion and maintaining a safe and clean community. I think that you also will be interested in reading about our special clinics and other activities highlighted in this report.

The size of our health department staff is growing. Perhaps you have already met our new members. Three additional public health nurses, Mrs. Betty H. Combs, Mrs. Primrose Bowling and Mrs. Wilma Robinson joined our staff last July. Their addition provides for the needed public nursing services we could not previously offer you.

On behalf of the staff, I extend to you, our appreciation for your interest in and support of our programs. Your volunteer help during last year's flood work, in the oral polio vaccine campaigns, and in other activities through the year was invaluable. Your support is an important contribution to the success of Perry County's public health program.

Sincerely yours,
Lyndon F. Combs, M. D.
Health Officer
Perry County

COMMUNICABLE DISEASE CONTROL

Communicable disease control is one of the Health Department's major services. Education and sanitation programs are carried on to promote clean and healthful living, and an intensive immunization program is undertaken to prevent such diseases as polio, smallpox, tetanus, diphtheria, whooping cough and typhoid. Immunization clinics are held in the Health Department and often out in the county by the public health nurses. During the spring of 1963, Perry County's mass sabin oral polio campaign was completed, with the assistance of the Hazard Jaycees and volunteer help by people over the county. Right after the March flood, again with the assistance of groups and individuals, typhoid "shots" were administered.

During the past year special effort has been made toward helping parents meet the requirements of the Kentucky compulsory immunization law, requiring that infants prior to the age of one be immunized against polio, smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough. A more extensive effort will be made during 1964 to get all babies in the county immunized. Parents cooperating in seeking this service and in keeping a record of such immunizations — a record which is needed when the child is ready to enroll in the first grade.

The Health Department continues to give immunizations, as needed, to all children and adults, who are unable to go to their private physicians for them.

The number of immunizations given by the Health Department during 1963:

Diphtheria, whooping cough, tetanus, 2,868
Smallpox 1,072
Typhoid 17,838

TUBERCULOSIS CONTROL

Tuberculosis is one of the ten leading causes of death in Kentucky. This disease is preventable and also curable. Early diagnosis and early treatment are the keys to its control.

A chest clinic is held every month in the Health Center by Dr. H. H. Cherry and his staff from the London Sanatorium. This clinic has proven to be most beneficial in helping to control the disease and in saving our people the time and expense of going to London for the service; but most important of all, it has been a tremendous help in our effort toward discovering unknown tuberculosis cases and in getting them on medical treatment.

During the past year we had 20 new cases in the county; 10 of these were admitted to the hospital for care and treatment. There are 557 inactive cases in the county; 5 have become reactivated. Home visits are made by the public health nurse to assist patients and their families in their nursing and social problems.

During the year 894 mobile chest x-rays were done for patients and the public, and 2,182 tuberculin skin tests were given. The questionable film and positive skin test are followed up by further x-raying, home visits and the checking of contacts. There were also 1204 x-rays done in the Health Department.

the diagnosis and treatment of venereal disease and maintains vigilance to prevent outbreaks through follow-up work with known contacts of patients. This program not only provides a service for the patient, but is designed to give community protection against venereal diseases. During 1963, 787 blood tests were done by the Health Department.

DIABETES

During Diabetes Detection Week, in November, 686 persons received urine screening tests. Of this number four were referred to their private physician for further diagnosis.

HEART DISEASE

A two-day Heart Clinic, staffed by cardiologists from the University of Kentucky Medical Center, was held at the Health Department in October. This clinic, which is sponsored by the Kentucky Heart Association and the state and local health departments, is available to patients—both adults and children, referred for diagnosis and evaluation, by their family physicians.

57 patients received service at the October clinic.

Free medication is dispensed to rheumatic heart patients, by the health department. This is done on request from their family physician.

MATERNAL AND CHILD HEALTH

Since it is important that everyone have the opportunity for a good start in life to become a healthy and productive citizen, the Health Department offers extensive aid to mothers and children, particularly to those who are unable to go to the private physician for health supervision.

The majority of expectant mothers in Perry County seek medical care and are delivered by physicians. The Health Department's supervision of the health of those mothers and babies not under the care of a private physician is a contribution to the community in its effort to save lives and maintain good health. This program by the Health Department involves the supervision of the licensure and practice of midwives; instruction in general health care to the mother before and after the baby's arrival, instruction in the care of the new baby—its feeding, clothing, immunizations, and general health. Care of the premature babies, diet deficiencies referral and follow-up visits on infants born with physical or mental defects may be a part of the service.

Along with the notification of the baby's birth registration, the Health Department sends an explanation of the requirements of Kentucky's Compulsory Immunization law and a form for keeping a record of the infant's immunizations, when received. Also included are instructions and the necessary materials for the detection of phenylketonuria (PKU)—a congenital metabolic disease which is associated with mental deficiency.

During 1963, the following activities were performed in the area of Maternal and Child Health:

Admissions to service (maternal)	76
Admissions to service (midwives)	11
Visits	134

DENTAL HEALTH PROGRAM FOR SCHOOLCHILDREN

Through the cooperation of the Perry County Dental Society and the public schools and their PTA's, the Health Department provides, as the budget and time permit dental care to school children who are financially unable to go to a private dentist.

The correction of their dental defects is done by local dentists in Hazard and by the State Department of Health dental trailer, on a rotating basis, in outlying communities. The screening of children for needed dental service is by the public health nurse through the cooperation of the schools. Dental instruction is also provided by the teacher in the classroom, the public health nurse, and by the dentist with children who attend the dental clinics. This instruction stresses the value of good nutrition and proper toothbrushing in the prevention of tooth decay.

During the past year, 107 dental health talks were made, and 2,101 dental corrections were provided for a total of 1,507 school children.

The Health Department is currently planning a special dental health education program to be offered soon to those schools wishing to participate. Educational materials have been contracted for through the Proctor and Gamble Distributing Company. These materials include teaching outlines, charts and demonstration kits on the causes, process and prevention of tooth decay. It is expected that they will be valuable in teaching children good dental health protection.

HANDICAPPED CHILDREN

The annual "Crippled Children's Clinic", which is sponsored locally by the Hazard Rotary Club, was held in June of 1963. 83 handicapped children from Perry and Knott counties were seen, reevaluated, fitted for braces, or selected for operative treatment at this clinic. Approximately 150 handicapped children, including epileptics and cerebral palsy cases, of the county are currently under the supervision of the Kentucky Commission for Handicapped Children and the Perry County Health Department. A physical therapist from the Commission spends one day every month seeing those children who are able to be brought in to the Health Department. Home visits are made by the public health nurse for those children who are unable to come to the Health Department. The Hazard Rotary Club helps in supplying transportation to the needy children who attend this clinic or who go to the Lexington and Louisville clinics for further diagnosis or treatment.

MENTAL HEALTH

Hazard is one of several cities in Kentucky where out-patient clinics are held for the mental patient following hospitalization. This clinic provides the opportunity for the psychiatrist and social worker from the Kentucky State Hospital at Danville to extend supervision of the patient's health after he has returned to his home and community. In addition to giving support to the hospital patient being rehabilitated to community life, the clinic furnishes psychiatric evaluation to other persons to determine their ability to participate productively in society.

This clinic is held monthly in the Health Department with an average attendance of 45 patients. The public health nurse assists the family of the mentally ill in the care of the patient and strives to educate the community to understand and accept mental illness on the same basis as physical illness.

SCHOOL HEALTH

We have about 11,000 children in our county of school age. These children have many health problems. It is the primary responsibility of the parents to help the children with these problems, but due to financial reasons many are unable to assume this responsibility. The family doctor, dentist and the health department help many of these children with their health problems. Many are screened for physical defects by the Health Department and referred to family doctors for corrections of defects. Preschool clinics for those beginning the first year of school during the months of April, May and June. These clinics are provided for children who are unable financially to go to their family doctors for physical examinations and immunizations. All parents are encouraged to take their pre-school child to their family doctor, if possible.

74 Preschool children examined
645 School health examination in school
53 Referrals for heart defects
276 Referrals for hearing defects
176 Referrals for visual defects
68 Referrals for other defects
2,115 Hearing screen test done
991 Vision test done

Many of these defects has been corrected through local physicians and special arranged clinics sponsored by the health department.

PUBLIC HEALTH EDUCATION

Through a health education program, the Health Department staff provides health information to the public and encourages and assists individuals and community groups in carrying out programs and activities in health.

Educational and informational services offered during the past year were presented in the form of:

- Radio and newspaper releases.
- Talks to organized community groups.
- Home visits to patients and their families.
- Consultation and advisory services to local government, mothers, teachers, foodhandlers, restaurant operators, families of tuberculosis patients and mental patients, diabetics and handicapped children, etc.
- Showing of health films to community groups and school children.
- Distribution health literature to public in general to school libraries and classroom, to community groups and to individuals seeking specific information on health.

Participation in school health programs. Special classes or instruction for individuals and groups afflicted by or interested in a particular area of health.

Participation in school health programs. Special classes or instruction for individuals and groups afflicted by or interested in a particular area of health.

The sanitation section of the Health Department is concerned with making Perry County a cleaner, safer and healthier place in which to live. To maintain a standard of sanitation necessary for the prevention of sickness and disease, the Health Department, through consultative and inspection services of sanitarians carried out such activities as the following during 1963:

Private water supplies	1,129
Establishments and institutions water supplies	248
Establishment and institutional sewage systems checked	330
Private sewage systems inspections	343
Restaurant inspections	142
Tavern inspections	49
Carnival inspections	32
Grocery store inspections	168
Public building inspections (restrooms, etc.)	202
Trailer coach park inspections	42
Swimming pool inspections	25
Public health nuisances abated	163
Person bitten by supposedly rabid animals	120
Animals quarantined	101
Heads submitted for rabies examination	16
Wells chlorinated	1,000
Water samples collected for bacteriological examination	189
Milk samples collected	48
Dog immunization clinics held	43
Dogs immunized	735

The basics of good sanitation is built around a safe and adequate water supply and proper sewage and garbage disposal. During 1963 the water lines from the Hazard water system were extended to supply the citizens of Darfork, Hulan, Airport Gardens and Combs. The sewage disposal plant for Hazard is well under way, and will be completed in 1964. This will be of tremendous value to Perry County and especially to the communities below Hazard on the Kentucky River.

NUTRITION

Nutrition is the science of good diet. Good nutrition may well be the basis of good health in a community. Nutrition is taught by the nurses to families when home visiting. It is also taught to school groups and community clinics. Attention is given to special problems in nutrition such as diabetic diet, infant feeding and problems of malnutrition.

VITAL RECORDS

The Health Department serves as custodian of Perry County's birth and death records.

The original of birth and death certificates is forwarded to the State Department of Health for safekeeping. A copy of these important documents is filed in the county health department by the County Registrar of vital records, Mrs. Cora Bates. The county registrar is also charged with the issuance of burial permits and transit permits authorizing the removal of bodies from the county for interment.

Certified copies of birth and death records are issued by the State Department of Health, Frankfort, Kentucky. Persons desiring information on how to apply for these may contact the Perry County Health Department.

During 1963, there were 1,564 live births, 57 stillbirths, and 314 deaths registered in the county. The chief causes of these deaths were heart disease, cancer and accidents.

ASCS Program Closes Friday

Friday, March 27, is the last day for filing an application to take part in the 1964 Feed Grain Program, Floyd Hall, Chairman Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said today. He urges growers who are interested in the program to call at the ASCS County Office as soon as possible.

"Time has a way of slipping up on us even though we think we have plenty," the Chairman pointed out. "Actually, there are only 7 working days left in which to sign up for this year's program. The office is open from 8:00 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. from Monday through Friday. We don't want anybody to be disappointed because he waited too long."

As last year, Mr. Hall explains, the feed grain program covers corn, grain, sorghum and barley. Minimum diversion under the 1964 program is 20 percent of the individual farm's total feed grain base. For diverting more than the minimum acreage from feed grain production into a conserving use, the diversion payment will be figured at a higher rate. If the diversion is 40 percent or more, the higher rate applies to the whole diversion.

Farmers in Perry County lost $11,000 in 1963 because they did not participate in the ASCS Program in Perry County. $11,000 for the farmers of Perry County would have quite an impact on the economy of the county. Let's not let this happen this year.

Hearings On President's Poverty Legislation

Hearings on the President's poverty legislation were to be given top priority by the House Education and Labor Committee, Carl D. Perkins (D-Ky.) said here today. The Kentucky Congressman said that preparations were being made within the House Committee on Education and Labor to give thorough and expeditious consideration to the President's proposed legislative program for the Appalachian Mountain area and for the "war on poverty."

Perkins, who is Chairman of the General Subcommittee on Education of the U. S. House of Representatives, stated that the President is expected to transmit specific legislative recommendations on this subject in a special message to the Congress very soon.

In addition to a comprehensive sive Appalachian Mountain program Perkins said that he expected that the President would recommend a combination conservation, work training program for young men along the lines of the Perkins bill favorably reported by the House Education and Labor Committee. This proposal is patterned along the lines of the Civilian Conservation Corps and would give income, training and work to young men in state and national parks, forests and public lands.

The President's message is also expected to endorse Perkins' legislation dealing with an Adult Education program so as to give an opportunity for adults to acquire the education so necessary in finding employment in today's technically oriented job market.

Perkins said that he had urged and that he expected the President's recommendations to include: (1) Provisions for a massive highway and access road construction program for the Appalachian Mountain area, (2) Complete funding of flood control reservoir projects with the development of new water usage and flood control reservoir systems, (3) Employment programs sufficient in size to enable every able-bodied man an opportunity to work, (4) Program of grants to communities so that no community will be without modern water, sewer and sewer treatment facilities, and other public works and buildings, (5) Strengthening of our educational programs, and (6) Programs to develop and utilize the natural resources of the area in income producing commercial and industrial enterprises so as to assure the ability of the region to be economically self-sustaining.

Perkins said that the hearings would call upon experts in the field of economics, conservation, education, commerce, engineering, and social work and from all regions of the country so as to completely develop the soundness and the urgency of the legislation.

Perkins stated that Eastern Kentuckians would be given a full opportunity to present their views and would be encouraged to participate in the information being gathered by the Education Committee.

Engineers Give Figures
On Value of Reservoirs

Army Engineer flood control reservoirs, levees and flood walls have saved Ohio Valley property owners at least $290 million in damage during the current high water, Brig. Gen. W. P. Leber said in a preliminary report today.

General Leber, Ohio River Division Army Engineer, said that some 30 of the 39 reservoirs which have been completed in the Valley were effective in reducing crests from two feet to more than ten feet along the 470-mile reach from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati. Typically, eight reservoirs above Pittsburgh cut six feet from the crest at Pittsburgh's famous "Golden Triangle," where the Rivers meet to form the Ohio. The Ohio rose to 31.6 feet there, compared to 37.6 feet had not the reservoirs been in operation.

In the Greater Pittsburgh area alone, this six foot reduction saved an estimated $38,327,000 in damage. The huge Allegheny Dam now under construction on the Allegheny River near the Pennsylvania-New York state line, would have reduced the Pittsburgh crest an additional 1.9 feet to a stage of 29.7 feet, and contributed another $2,000,000 to damage prevented.

Allegheny Dam, scheduled for completion in 1968, will have a flood storage capacity of 940,000 acre feet — sufficient to cover the states of Rhode Island and Delaware to a depth of six inches.

Ten reservoirs, the same eight which were effective in of Berlin and Mosquito Creek reduced the crest in the Greater Wheeling, W. Va., area by 6.6 feet, holding the river to a stage of 47.2 feet. Prevented $19,500,000 in flood damage.

A 10.5-foot reduction occurred at Parkersburg, W. Va., to 45 feet, under the influence not only of reservoirs in the extreme upper valley, but the Defense and Red Cross units throughout the Valley, to maintain floodaffected communications and transportation.

Estimates of flood damage are being compiled by the Ohio Division Office, and District Engineer Offices in Pittsburgh, Pa., Huntington, W. Va., and Louisville, Ky., but, General Leber said these would not be available until next week after the flood has passed farther down the river.

He noted, however, that the flood of March 1963, which crested at 59.4 feet in Cincinnati — some five feet lower than the current high water — left a $100 million damage trail throughout the Valley, while flood control reservoirs prevented approximately $150 million in loss.

The following table lists (1) the observed or predicted crests of the Ohio River; (2) stage reduction affected by reservoir operation, and (3) the stage to which the river otherwise would have gone:

Station	Observed or Predicted Crest (Feet)	Reduction (Feet)	Natural (Feet)
Pittsburg	31.6	6.0	37.6
Montgomery	29.3	6.2	35.5
New Cumberland	25.9	6.4	32.3

Rain Scares Viper Residents

Edna and Cecil Fisher of Beverly were the house guests of your correspondent Thursday, March 5.

Your correspondent and husband and sons were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Brummett and family at Delphia. Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Osborne of Leslie County were the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Farler.

Sanford Farler is home from the hospital in Lexington.

Thank goodness for the stopping of the rain Sunday. It gave us an awful scare.

Wilk Asher is suffering from the flu.

Well, I do believe spring is bursting out all over. The strawberry is budding and spring shrubbery flowers blooming and I even saw a snake Monday. It will soon be picking time, too. I love that wild salet and poke salet, too.

Geraldine Farler spent Saturday afternoon with Brenda Brummett. They went out to explore the forest. A bit early, don't you think, but guess they got spring fever.

Folks, I have noticed during the past few pretty days we have had that there hasn't been too much activity around the court house square, many of you are still there, you are just talking in low tones, I don't hear the laughter as I did a few other pretty days of the past. The square is usually quite. Yes Boys I realize that one of the most active among you has gone to that great beyond. With the passing of ROY BAKER your friend and mine we are going to miss him more than many of his other friends that didn't come in contact as often as a lot of us did. If he was well and able, the weather was never too bad for him to make his usual rounds each day, despite his being 80 years old. He was an inspiration to many that knew him because of his jolly ways, he was the life of the crowd regardless of what type it was. He could mingle with kings and queens, yes from the biggest to the smallest, Roy could hold his place and composure with any. He enjoyed his friends he just had to be among them when the weather permitted. He was looking forward to this fishing season so much, as he has done in the years past, in fact a couple of days before he was stricken I helped him get some of his tackle in readiness—I firmly believe that Roy got more pleasure out of life than any person I have ever known, also I believe that it was God's intention to set him as a pattern for many of us to follow, that is not to get down and give up because of your age, he never complained about hardships, and he went through the last two floods we had. Folks that was enough to discourage the young, much less people of Roy's age. He and Minnie, his good wife had moved into the new housing project, yes above the flood stage, as he often stated but I am still worried about my friends that are still down there. I am afraid of that water any more, because Minnie and I can't stand it anymore. Minnie, his good wife, I along with all his friends, I am sure that I can ably speak for, their regrets to you and all your family in your great loss. I realize it will be hard to bear, Minnie and all place your trust in the Man above, it was his will and not ours that these things come to pass.

YOU BOYS AROUND

The Court House Square, just carry on as you have done in the past, this is the way that Roy would want you to do. I am sure that his wife Minnie and all the rest of his family would like to see the same. Just keep up your whittling trading, carry on the same as you have in the past. I know what many of you are thinking, who will be next, but that is not the big question, live today for what is the right thing. That is the way I know ROY would have wanted it. Let's see the activity as you boys have always done in the past. I would like to see a lot of you fellows whittle something this coming spring that could sell, say just a duck, or a bird of some kind. Who will be the first to whittle out something besides shavings. Something maybe in remembrance of Roy.

SO GOOD TO LEARN

That some CIVIC CLUB is starting a program in regard to FLOOD CONTROL, which is the JAYCEES I personally think this could be a fine beginning to really get an organized effort in reality to know about the waters in this valley when they become of the danger period of flooding. Just a few nights ago we heard over the radio about all the confusion in regard to the telephone lines, it's be able to keep these lines opened so that some source of responsibility can get through. I firmly believe that the JAYCEES will be done in the proper way, because of their past records they just don't do things in a half hearted manner. I will offer a few suggestions as I did some few months ago. We need communications from the head of the river, not from Cincinnati, Ohio. We need reliable people to stand by bridges that are familiar with explosives to keep drift from piling up. The railings on the town bridge should be hinged to keep from collecting debris. Many of these things could play an important part in our help our selves flood control efforts. Let's not wait until the waters come, let's all join with the JAYCEES to help their efforts.

FITTING EXAMPLE

To floods as what we have read in the papers in regard to Louisville, Ky., they had flood control measure, but didn't get them into action soon enough. To me this is the important thing to be ready to exercise all the facilities that we have to help our people in this VALLEY. We have no gates to close, we have not nothing but small items that we can offer to help our people. Such as I have expressed so many times before. If we had such help I will guarantee you that our people would get the gates closed in time to turn the tides of old man river. Because we know what our streams can do in such a few short hours. We don't have days, or hours to move out, ours is limited to minutes. When your waters rises from 24 to 36 inches per hour, folks that is when havoc is displayed by many of our Eastern Kentucky Streams.

Folks sometimes I get ashamed to write about flood control in our valleys, so little has been done, yes, I will admit a lot of it is on paper, that doesn't stop the flow of muddy waters, also contaminated waters that flows from our streams. Neither does it stop the possibility of your house or business being washed away. Providing it has withstood the recent high waters of the past that has been weakened by past floods. You, the people should voice your opinions to Washington, express your feelings to where these flood programs start from. We have been trying and have been promised since 1927 that we would have some type of flood protection. Here we are in 1964 and still without flood protection. Our demands could not be any greater than our fellow men that live below us, these same waters has its effects for many miles after it leaves us. Which has proven once again in the Ohio Valley, Louisville, Cincinnati, and other major cities. Flood waters are controlled at the points from where they start. With local leaders of our community could well relay the importance of this item to many other communities farther down the river. Then all would reap the benefits of a constructive program for the welfare of all.

School Officials Earn Praise

Most citizens who live outside the power structure that has historically controlled our public schools have in the past despaired that Perry County education, would ever rise above the mire that it has wallowed in for generations.

Personal gain, family loyalties, petty grievances between individuals, unenlightened school boards and a thriving spoils system on the local level are all major factors that have made the history of public education in Kentucky and particularly the mountains an enormous burden which the people have been barely able to drag along through the decades.

But now several reasons are becoming apparent why the old public despair over our schools is giving way to public hope. Some of these are described in a feature story elsewhere on this page. It is refreshing indeed to be able to present some statistics that indicate that the dark clouds that have always hovered above our public schools in the mountains are beginning to scatter so that the light of genuine progress may shine through.

This newspaper has in the past seen fit to level criticism at the Perry County School Board for what it considered gross mismanagement and outright illegal carryings-on. Questionable property purchases, wrongful use of county equipment and unfair hiring practices are some of the complaints this newspaper has had about past school boards.

Specific examples of such complaints are the way the Leatherwood High School Gymnasium was financed and built, and the way certain unauthorized expenditures were made a few years back for improvements of the old large sums of money provided by the sales tax which past superintendents and school boards did not have. But because of instances in the past when large sums of money was available to the board but was virtually wasted by gross mismanagement, the fact that such has not happened during Mr. Wooton's tenure is notable.

Inheriting an estimated deficit of $200,000 when he came into office, Mr. Wooton has managed the county's school affairs so that the system is now operating well in the black. Last year a surplus of several thousand dollars was left in the treasury which was put to good use this year. Public money in any government is a difficult thing to manage well, and impossible to manage to everyone's personal satisfaction. But because Mr. Wooton has managed as wisely as he has, we congratulate him.

No doubt many individuals and perhaps some whole communities with personal complaints against the present school board and superintendent will react strongly against the opinion we express here. If so we hope that they will take the time to set their opinions down in writing and send them to us in the form of letters to the editor. And no doubt too, this newspaper will again criticize the school board the first good chance it gets, hoping to keep the board mindful that it exists to serve the public and not vice versa.

But in the meantime, it deserves to be said that public education in Perry County is getting better every day, and credit earned by school officials is credit due.

THE FIRST DAY OF FRIDAY

By Honor Tracy

Laughter, good, noisy, carefree laughter of the hammock kind, is what Honor Tracy's "The First Day of Friday" provokes on one giddy page after another. To read it is to go on vacation without waiting for summer. As wacky as P. G. Wodehouse, as thrusting as Evelyn Waugh, it is a novel about modern Ireland in which Cathleen in Houlihan is taken for an uproarious ride on a roller coaster.

Miss Tracy's time-honored concern is a man and a maid. But such a man, and, above all, such a maid, and such a topsy-turvy concern! The man is Michael Duff, an agreeable and lazy young Protestant of the shabbiest gentility, who, impoverished by taxes, is the owner of a decaying country place. The maid is Atracta Smith, a plump, unrestrainedly fertile and dream-ridden Catholic servant who by her monumental incompetence contributes daily to that decay. With her sniveling triplets she has somehow managed to attach herself to the Duff household, thus guaranteeing its disorder and discomfort. As for Miss Tracy's harum-scarum plot, it is chiefly concerned with Michael Duff's incessant attempts to fire Atracta, the unchangeable, who refuses to leave. What matters, however, is not the tale but its telling. What counts is Miss Tracy's farcical fancy, her unorthodoxy of mind, her eruptive imagery and, above all, her uncanny skill for conjuring a host of eccentrics and then knitting them one by one while smiling affectionately.

Jimmy Morris, Harold Oliver, Jimmy Collins, Lester Collins and Bobby Morris warm themselves on the Sulphur Springs School's pot-bellied stove.

Buckhorn School when it was not county-owned. The most recent public fracas involving the school board was the questionable way in which the site of the new Viper School was selected.

It is part of the function of a local newspaper to stimulate public thinking through editorial comment and criticism of public officials achieves this end.

But it is also the function of a local newspaper to stay alert to positive changes in public affairs, to point out favorable aspects of government enterprise, in short, to render praise where praise is due.

And considerable praise is due the present county school board and particularly School Superintendent Dennis Wooton for the work that they are doing.

The five years in which Mr. Wooton has served the county as superintendent have been perhaps the most fruitful years in the history of public education in Perry County. Under his direction, new schools and better teachers are filtering into our public system every year. Much of what he has been able to accomplish was made possible only through the

The Dennis Wooton School, named for the current Perry County School Superintendent, is one of four new brick schools that have gone up in the county in the past two years. This consolidated school now takes children that used to attend one-room schools.

County Education Has Come Far...

By GURNEY NORMAN

The days of the one-room school house and uncertified teacher in Perry County are numbered.

What that number is no one can forecast at this time.

But a review of the changes that have swept over public education in the county in the last five years reveals an upward trend that, like the tide, is swelling rapidly and inevitably must roll in to shore.

The most recent evidence that such a tide is in fact beginning to swell is the new Big Creek Elementary School near Avawam that opened its doors to 250 students for the first time last week.

New Buckhorn School

And if the Big Creek School doesn't convince you, be on hand for the opening of one just as new and modern at Buckhorn in a few weeks.

The Buckhorn School will bring the total of new county schools to four.

The others are Robert W. Combs Elementary at Happy, Dennis Wooton Elementary at Airport Gardens, and the new one at Big Creek.

In addition to these four new structures, the county has purchased and remodeled the old Blue Diamond School at Bonnyman and is currently getting good service out of it.

Old Schools Abandoned

Perhaps the most revealing aspect of the new schools that have come into existence in recent years is the number of old schools that have been abandoned.

Robert W. Combs Elementary replaced obsolete buildings at Hardburly, Heiner, Hilton, Dudley and Cornett.

When Big Creek Elementary opened up last week, the old Woodland, Avawam, Whitaker and Eversole schools were left vacant.

The old Buckhorn Elementary, Gays Creek, Johnson and Feb Fork schools will be closed as soon as the new Buckhorn school opens. Students at Squabble Creek will eventually attend Buckhorn also.

And that's not all.

Plans Drawn For Lost Creek

Two weeks ago a contract was let for the construction of a new elementary school at Viper, and plans have already been drawn for a new six-room school at Lost Creek.

The new Viper Elementary is expected to be ready in about a year. It will take students from the old Viper, Chestnut Point, Logwood, Roger's Branch and Hall Mountain Schools.

And once the new school goes up at Lost Creek, the doors will be closed on the Miller, Sixteen Creek, Rock Fork and Ten Mile schools.

So with Lost Creek in operation, twenty nine old fashioned schools will have been replaced.

Then the county will only have forty six more to go.

One-room school houses are not the only outmoded and undesirable features of Perry County education to be vanishing with the wind.

Teacher Quality Up

Improvements in the caliber of teacher personnel are coming just as rapidly and dramatically as are the physical facilities in which they work.

In 1958, Perry County had 18 teachers who had less than a year of college. Today there aren't any in this category.

In 1958, the county had thirty four teachers with less than two years college. Today only ten with that little education are still teaching.

Even more startling, in 1958 the county employed 100 teachers with less than three years college. Today there are only 46 in this category still teaching.

The number of teachers certified at the minimum level has jumped sharply from 98 to 168 in the last five years.

And interest in higher education, reflecting what school superintendent Dennis Wooton calls a "new professional attitude" among the teachers is evident when you note that today thirty teachers in the county system have a Master's Degree plus as many as 23 additional graduate hours.

Professional Attitude

Also indicative of the new attitude of professionalism among county teachers is their growing interest in state and national teacher organizations.

All county teachers are now members of the Kentucky Educational Association. In the last year 133 county teachers have also affiliated with the National Educational Association.

Superintendent Wooton credits the funds made available to Kentucky education through the state sales tax begun during the administration of former Governor Bert Combs for the sharp rise in new schools and better teachers.

The hike in teacher's salaries that upped some teacher's take-home pay as much as $1,000 a year is largely responsible for the upgrading in quality of public school teachers.

Many older teachers who taught for years on emergency certificates have been encouraged to return to college to obtain their degrees.

Future Depends On Local People

"Our degree people are mostly natives of the area," Wooton explains. "Our real hope for the future lies in getting our own people to come back here to teach."

Apparently the trend is in this direction. Many of the young teachers throughout the county are fairly recent graduates of M. C. Napier, Combs Memorial, Leatherwood and Buckhorn High Schools.

Other improvements in county education that are less obvious to the outside viewer but of great importance to the student in the classroom are the new subjects that are being offered for the first time.

Music teachers, art teachers, and guidance counselors are typical of some of the new personnel that have been added to certain county schools for the first time. These trained people, plus new science and home ec. equipment in the classrooms represent the new opportunities beginning to open up for rural high school students.

Two Million Dollar Budget

None of this comes cheaply. The county school budget for the current fiscal year is just 9,000 dollars shy of a whopping two million. This is almost twice the amount of money the county had to spend in 1958-59, and expenses can be expected to increase as new improvements come.

But, according to University of Kentucky President John W. Oswald, the public attitude all over the state is changing in favor of more spending for education. Even in the isolation of the mountains, traditionally the stronghold of old-fashioned notions about everything, the attitude of the public is changing as parents begin to assume their proper responsibility for the education of their children.

These parents have good reason to be encouraged about their children's educational future. Perry County education has come a long way just in the last five years, and the tide is just beginning to swell.

...But It Still Has A Long Way To Go

Education Officials are fighting to correct.

But a less obvious and less tangible problem that is consequently more difficult to combat is one imposed by the continuing outmigration of people from the area.

Student Enrollment Drops

In 1958 the total student enrollment in 9,455. Today that total has dipped drastically. Perry County elementary and high schools to 7,502.

Besides representing a loss of what is perhaps this region's most important natural resource—its youth—this startling loss of students from our schools has a side-effect on the number of teachers that the county can employ.

Thirty students constitute one educational unit, for which the state allows one teacher. Every time as many as thirty students leave the county, the school system loses one teacher.

And since 1958 the county has lost 1,953 students.

The children at Sulphur Springs are all alert and bright-eyed, obviously as intelligent as any children to be found anywhere. Since they have never been exposed to anything better, they display to the visitor no apparent sense of inferiority because of their limited school facilities.

Later Comparison Will Hurt

But the eventual comparison that awaits them when they go on to high school to sit in the same classrooms with children who have attended one of the new, modern county schools must inevitably be unfair to the Sulphur Springs children and to their fellows in all of the remaining forty-six one and two room schools in the county.

That is why local school officials and parents cannot afford to become complacent because some progress has been made in upgrading county public education. There will be no opportunity to relax their efforts until the totals of forty-six old schools and eighty emergency teachers are reduced to zero and zero in both categories.

Sulphur Springs Elementary School.

The Sulphur Springs Elementary School is typical of the approximately forty six old-style frame schools that are still in use in Perry County. The school has one room and one teacher for all eight grades. Twenty seven students attend here. It is heated by a pot-bellied stove. Drinking water for the children is kept in a bucket in the classroom. Note the outdoor toilet in left foreground of the picture.

Congressman Carl D. Perkins Files For Re-Election

Today Congressman Carl D. Perkins filed declaration papers for nomination as the Democratic candidate for re-election to Congress from the Seventh District of Kentucky.

Perkins, who is now serving his eighth consecutive term, is now the ranking Member of the House Education and Labor Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives. As Chairman of the senior Education Subcommittee, he sponsored and brought to a successful vote the Vocational Education Act of 1963 which inaugurated a new Federal program for vocational education. This legislation will more than triple Kentucky Vocational Education programs and facilities in high schools and in the state area vocational schools at Hazard, Ashland, and Paintsville. The stated objective of the legislation is to assure all citizens an opportunity for training leading to a remunerative occupation.

Perkins is also the author and sponsor of the Youth Conservation Corps, a bill to receive the CCC of the 30's as a means of providing employment for the long term unemployed, and of obtaining conservation work in state parks and national public lands and forests. The Perkins bill has been reported favorably by the House Education and Labor Committee and is pending further action before the Rules Committee before being taken up on the floor. The measure is supported by President Johnson's administration and is expected to receive further endorsement in the President's special message on poverty to be delivered to Congress very soon.

Perkins said that the most important matters confronting the Eastern Kentucky area, which he represents in Congress, are (1) the construction of modern expressway type highways to connect the Appalachian Mountain area of Eastern Kentucky with other population centers and the construction and improvement of local roads and access highways, (2) completion of planned flood control projects and the development and construction of new water usage and flood control systems, (3) employment programs sufficient in size to enable every able-bodied man an opportunity to work, (4) grants to communities so that every community in the District will have modern water and sewer facilities and other public works and buildings, (5) strengthening of the educational program so as to give every citizen an opportunity for training that will assure him of employment and assure newly developing and expanding industries a source of trained manpower, and (6) programs to develop and utilize the natural resources of the area in income producing enterprises so as to assure the ability of the Appalachian area to be economically self-sustaining.

Perkins said, "Our area of the state is on the threshold of securing many new roads, super highways, and flood control projects thereby increasing our industrial and recreational assets. Also of great importance is the expansion of existing and the development of new farm programs to assure good conservation practices and increased farm income."

Perkins, Democrat, was born in Hindman, Knott County, Kentucky, on October 15, 1912, where he still resides. After graduating from Law School, he served two terms as County Attorney of Knott County, Kentucky, and was a Member of the General Assembly of Kentucky in 1940. He saw service in World War II in the European theater; was elected on November 2, 1948 to the 81st Congress, and was re-elected for seven succeeding terms. Perkins married Miss Verna Johnson, Moulie, Knott County, Kentucky, and has one son, Carl Christopher. In 1963, Perkins received the National Association of Vocational School Administrators' top award given to the person making the most outstanding contribution in the field of vocational education.

Garden Clubbers

To Color 'Smokey'

Posters in Contest

For their conservation project junior garden clubbers will turn their green thumbs to coloring Smokey Bear posters in a contest sponsored by National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc., and the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

It is expected that 200,000 young artists will let their imaginations go in coloring the picture of a bandaged bear who has obviously been playing with matches. Surrounded by bird and animal friends he is ruefully looking at a sign which reads, "Smokey says, 'Don't Play with Matches'."

This contest is designed to make the junior gardeners for, est fire prevention conscious, and to warn them of the dangers of playing with matches. Each year dozens of forest fires are started by youngsters playing with the little flammable sticks.

To give the contestants plenty of time, coloring sheets will be ready for distribution by September 1964 when the children return to school. Supplies of the coloring sheets may be obtained from Mr. Bill Fouts during the summer.

Rules of the contest are printed on the back of the picture. Briefly they state that:

Entries must be in the hands of the State Junior Gardening Chairman by January 15, 1965.

Participation is confined to members of an affiliated Junior Garden Club.

Different age levels will use different media to color the poster. The 6 to 8 year olds will use crayons; the 9 to 11 group, colored pencils; and the 12 to 14 year olds, water colors.

The three best entries from each age group in the State will be forwarded to National Council Projects Chairman for final judging by February 15, 1965. The names of the National winners will be announced for openers?

THE DEPENDABLES: SUCCESS CARS OF '64

How're these...

When it comes to convertibles, Dodge has 'em... in spades. These are just two of them. The differences? Dart, the Dodge on top, is a compact. And if you think it doesn't look compact, here are a few other surprises: It doesn't sit, ride or take off like most compacts! Dart's the large economy size compact. Roomy. Powerful. Nifty. Yet thrifty.

How about the Polara, below it? Yeah, how about that. Full vinyl upholstery. A snap down center armrest in front. A selection of power plants few cars at the price can come close to. Price? That's the kicker! This full-size Dodge is priced model for model with Ford and Chevy.

Go see 'em. Full-size Dodge, Compact Dart. We'll bet dollars to doughnuts, you'll buy one.

OOPS...
We did it again!

We're the first to admit that we build 2-wheel drive trucks differently from anyone else. You may call it building them backwards . . . or upside down . . . or even sideways. Whatever you choose to call it, it's a fact that we do build them differently. But we do it for a very good reason. We do it because we think 2-wheel drive trucks should be just as rugged as 4-wheel drive trucks. So we start out by actually building a 4-wheel drive "Jeep" Gladiator truck, but without the transfer case and front and power train. And there you have it . . . a 2-wheel drive "Jeep" Gladiator truck with all the heavy duty components and ruggedness of a 4-wheel drive truck. Sure, it's doing things differently. But it results in a big bonus for the Gladiator owner . . . especially since prices* are competitive, too. Why not see your "Jeep" dealer today and get all the facts. Based on manufacturers' suggested prices. *Jeep® and Gladiator® are trademarks of Chrysler Corporation. © 1964 Chrysler Corporation.
